

Community Organization

A registered community organizes several events on regular basis for their registered members throughout the year. Committee members would organize an event and then let the members know via phone, email, Facebook, WhatsApp etc. Committee members also depend on several members for their help in organizing such events.

The following is a description of their existing method to organize an event:

1. An event is planned with details such as type of event, date, time, venue etc. A notification is sent to the members via email, Facebook and WhatsApp group.
2. Members are asked to confirm their attendance together with number of family members.
3. A rough total cost of the organized event is determined by the committee members depending upon the number of people attending. Then a call for the sponsorships and/or donations is made to the members.
4. If the total sponsorships or donations is more or equal to the total cost, event is offered as a free event to all the members. Otherwise, the gap in the cost amount is determined and divided equally among the adult members over the age of eighteen who didn't sponsor or pledged a donation.
5. Committee also depends upon the help of volunteers in organizing events. Committee needs help in picking up/delivery of items to the venue, arranging /cooking foods; provide support at the event venue etc. Committee has a list of dedicated volunteers who always come forward with providing such help. However, some time committee need to make a call to the general community members for the help if they are in short supply of volunteers.
6. A special event is planned at the end of the year to honor the members who provided sponsorship/donations greater than $3000. The cost of this event is divided equally among all the registered adult members (attending or not attending the event) excluding those who made donations/sponsorships of above $500 to a single event in a year.
